Section II: Presentation Materials

Presentations are provided by graduate students and usually provide an overview of forensic anthropology methods, including age, sex, stature and pathology, as well as trauma analysis and time since death estimation (including decomposition).

1. Is there any of the above topics (e.g., trauma or decomposition) that you do NOT want included in the presentation?

2. Is there any specific information that would be useful to include in the presentation for your group? Examples are elaboration on any of the above, such as decomposition, trauma or pathology, or additional topics such as archaeology and recovery techniques, etc.

Section III: Scheduling

Please give options for dates and times of the requested presentation. If there is only one date/time option, please indicate this.

I understand that graduate student presenters are volunteers and should be reimbursed by the requesting institution for fuel and a meal for presentation requests outside of Knoxville. Overnight trips require that travel and hotel costs are also covered.
